

2010 Meeting Highlights

“Emerging Technologies in Times of Change”

Change is something that all laboratories across the country and the world are faced with in dealing with challenges to provide testing methodology for protection of the environment, food supply, health and safety. Scientists must address change utilizing new technologies to provide better analytical services to their customers that is fast, precise and accurate.

Join us for our 24th Annual Meeting as we provide our members with quality analytical resources. Our goal is to provide the tools necessary to deal successfully with the analytical demands we all face.
